RESPONSIBLE INVESTING

We're strong advocates of responsible investing (also known as sustainable investing). Responsible investing means when we're considering whether to invest in a company, we don't just look at their financial performance. We also look at their environmental, social and governance (ESG) performance, because we believe these factors have a big impact on long-term returns.

MARKET AND FUND REVIEW

Global equity markets had a mixed start to the year, with indices in the US continuing their good run, while some Asian and European markets ended the month lower.

In the US, the S&P 500 Index and the NASDAQ 100 Index both rose to all-time highs, finishing the month up 1.6% and 1.9% respectively. Communications services was the best-performing sector, followed by technology and financials. Financials were in favour after some US banks reported better-than-expected fourth quarter earnings. Meanwhile, in Europe, the Euro Stoxx ended the month in positive territory, its third straight month of gains, while in the UK, the FTSE 100 fell after the pace of inflation unexpectedly rose in December, meaning early interest rate cuts are looking less likely.

Down under, New Zealand and Australian share markets also finished the month with gains, with the NZX 50 up 0.9% and the ASX 200 up 1.2%. Much of the recent strength in Australia's share market can be attributed to the strong performance of the energy sector, while equities got a further boost after inflation slowed sharply to 4.1% in the final quarter of 2023, down from 5.4%. The one outlier was China, with the Shanghai Composite down 6.3% after a Hong Kong judge ordered the liquidation of embattled property giant Evergrande, putting more pressure on the country's property market.

Bonds were mostly lower across the board as faster-than-expected inflation in the US and the UK meant early interest rate cuts appear to be less likely, while strong economic data, which underscored the resilience of the US economy also weighed on bond prices. New Zealand bond prices were also lower in January, despite economic data showing the pace of inflation had slowed.

The fund holds over 90% of its assets in growth investments, such as shares, property and infrastructure. The fund's tactical positioning held back relative performance over the month given its more defensive positioning; an overweight to weaker performing international and New Zealand bonds, and an underweight to stronger performing international equities. Within our international equities exposure, a weak performance of our growth manager also held back relative performance, although this was partly offset by good company selection within the fund's New Zealand equities and international listed property holdings.

We maintain our defensive positioning, holding an underweight to international equities and an overweight to domestic and international fixed interest. Our base case is that growth continues to slow but remains positive over the short term in the US, with weaker growth in Europe and New Zealand. We expect core inflation to make slow progress towards target, with central banks holding rates in restrictive territory. The extended period of restrictive interest rates will eventually weigh on growth in 2024, consistent with a mild recession.
