Conservative Fund

Fund description

The Conservative Fund invests mainly in income assets (cash and cash equivalents and fixed interest), with a smaller exposure to growth assets (equities and listed property). The fund may also invest in alternative assets.

Market Review

The Conservative Fund holds a broad range of investments, both in New Zealand and overseas. Over the quarter, the fund returned 1.8% and remains comfortably ahead of its long term objective.

The fund has a significant weighting to fixed interest (bond) investments, which make up around 60% of its holdings. We have been cautious on international bonds, as global interest rates look set to move higher and, generally, bonds do not do well in a rising interest rate environment. We held an underweight position to this asset class and this was of benefit as international bonds delivered only modest gains over the period. That said, the fund had an overweight allocation to cash. This held back performance as the returns from cash lagged behind those from all other investment markets during the quarter. The returns from international shares, which make up around 12% of the fund, were particularly strong. Strong global growth, some good corporate profit results and the likelihood of US shares getting a further boost from US tax reforms helped them to register good gains. While our underlying international share managers lagged the benchmark over the quarter, over the year they have done well and have contributed to the fund's strong long-term track record.

Some good stock selection by our underlying investment managers also helped during the quarter. Of particular note was the fund's domestic and international listed property holdings, as well as in Australian shares, where our managers delivered above-benchmark returns. Our outlook is unchanged. We expect bond markets to struggle as global interest rates start moving higher and so we maintain our underweight position. While we believe international share markets will continue to do well, we hold a neutral position, as we recognise that markets look slightly overvalued at present.

Balanced Fund

Fund description

The Balanced Fund invests in similar amounts of income assets (cash and cash equivalents and fixed interest) and growth assets (equities and listed property). The fund may also invest in alternative assets.

Market Review

The Balanced Fund holds a broad range of investments, both in New Zealand and overseas. Over the quarter, the fund returned 3.4% and remains comfortably ahead of its long term objective.

International shares, which make up around 30% of the fund, were particularly strong. Strong global growth, some good corporate profit results and the likelihood of US share markets getting a further boost from US tax reforms helped them to register good gains. While our underlying international share managers lagged the benchmark over the quarter, over the year they as a whole they have done well and have contributed to the fund's strong long-term track record.

The fund's strategic positioning had a slight positive impact on returns over the quarter. Its underweight position in fixed interest (bond) markets helped, as international bonds delivered only modest gains. That said, its overweight allocation to cash held back performance as the returns from cash lagged behind those from all other investment markets during the quarter.

Some good stock selection by our underlying investment managers also helped during the quarter. Of particular note was the fund's domestic and international listed property holdings, as well as in Australian shares, where our managers delivered above-benchmark returns.

Our outlook is unchanged. We expect bond markets to struggle as global interest rates start moving higher and so we maintain our underweight position. While we believe international share markets will continue to do well, we hold a neutral position, as we recognise that markets look slightly overvalued at present.

Market Review

The Growth Fund holds a broad range of investments, both in New Zealand and overseas. Over the quarter, the fund returned 5.0% and remains comfortably ahead of its long term objective.

International shares, which make up around half of the fund, were particularly strong. Strong global growth, some good corporate profit results and the likelihood of US share markets getting a further boost from US tax reforms helped them to register good gains. While our underlying international share managers lagged the benchmark over the quarter, over the year as a whole they have done well and have contributed to the fund's strong long-term track record.

The fund's strategic positioning had a slight positive impact on returns over the quarter. Its underweight position in fixed interest (bond) markets helped, as international bonds delivered only modest gains. That said, its overweight allocation to cash held back performance as the returns from cash lagged behind those from all other investment markets during the quarter.

Some good stock selection by our underlying investment managers also helped during the quarter. Of particular note was the fund's domestic and international listed property holdings, as well as in Australasian shares, where our managers delivered above-benchmark returns.

Our outlook is unchanged. We expect bond markets to struggle as global interest rates start moving higher and so we maintain our underweight position. While we believe international share markets will continue to do well, we hold a neutral position, as we recognise that markets look slightly overvalued at present.
