The next issue of the ANZ Business Outlook is scheduled for release on 31 August 2017 at 1pm.

WINTER WONDERLAND

SUMMARY

- Business confidence ebbed lower in July, but this reflects nothing more than seasonal chill, with seasonally adjusted confidence actually lifting 2 points.
- Firms remain very upbeat about their own prospects, and are keen to hire and invest.
- Growth prospects across the economy remain firm.

Winter brought the typical nudge lower in ANZ Business Confidence. A net 19% of businesses are optimistic about the year ahead. That’s down 5 points on the month prior and not much more than a dusting of snow-flakes. In seasonally adjusted terms business confidence actually lifted, from +26 to +28.

Firms are well wrapped up.

- A net 40% of businesses expect better times ahead for their own business. Though down 3 points on June, it’s the second highest reading of 2017, and the third highest in two years. Adjusting for seasonality, firms’ own activity expectations lifted from +43 to +45.
- A net 23% of firms are expecting to lift investment, versus an historical average of 13%.
- Employment intentions rose from +24 to +26, the highest reading since May 2014. That’s tremendously encouraging. At a time firms are reporting finding skilled staff as their biggest challenge, it shows no let-up on the demand side of the equation.
- Profit expectations eased from +30 to +25 (historical average: 10). So there is little to worry about here.
- Export intentions increased from +27 to +33, the highest since April 2014.
- Jack Frost nipped residential construction intentions, which dropped from +18 to +11. Commercial construction intentions fell from +29 to +6.
- Firms’ pricing intentions waned from +31 to +28. Inflation expectations held steady at 2%.
- A net 27% of businesses expect it to be tougher to get credit. That’s still tough, though an improvement on the prior three months.

ANZ BUSINESS OUTLOOK

The economic thermometer is warm. Being upbeat about activity – and prepared to invest and employ – translates into solid economic momentum. Our confidence composite indicator is pointing to annual GDP growth in excess of 4%. However, the difficulty in finding skilled labour and sub-par productivity growth puts that out of reach. Real GDP growth around 3% is far more feasible.

The agriculture sector is now the most optimistic with regards to business confidence, the activity outlook and profitability. The chilly blast from low dairy prices has dissipated. New Zealand's terms of trade (the ratio of export prices to import prices) is at its highest level since 1973. Commodity prices are up 25% year-on-year and up 20% in local dollar terms.

It's pleasing to see business sentiment (and the consumer equivalent) hold up amidst a slow-down in pro-cyclical parts of the economy.

Lending conditions have tightened, credit growth has slowed and interest rates are off their lows. Auckland house prices have fallen 4% since January. House prices outside of Auckland are still lifting, but at a much milder pace. Building consents and wider construction sector activity appears to be hitting limits.

This resilience is testament to the wide array of drivers across the economy. It still centres on more bums on seats (population growth) but one can add to that lifting commodity prices, pending expansionary fiscal policy, higher highs for tourism, and the strong performance of boutique sectors (kiwifruit, IT, horticulture) that are now gaining critical mass.
